Sewage Purification Abandoned.

A sewage purifying scheme proposed to the Orange City Council by Charles W. Daughy of Boston will not be put in operation because the promoter of the scheme has withdrawn his proposition. Mr. Daughy proposed to build a sewage purifying plant on the bank of the Passaic river. He informed the members of the council Wednesday night that as he was unable to get the necessary backing he would be compelled to give up the idea of building the plant. The meeting was called to discuss the contract which had been drawn up by City Council William A. Lord, but much to the surprise of the members Mr. Daughy announced his intention to withdraw.

The original proposition from Mr. Daughy, dated at Boston, offered on behalf of the investor and associates, to construct a purification plant for $10,000 in cash or $20,000 in deferred payments; the promoters to construct, operate and maintain the plant for a period of twenty years and to pay the city $1,000 a year for the franchise, the plant to revert to the city at the expiration of the franchise.

Did the Gallant.

A well-known Second Ward citizen, Fred Prosser, died yesterday at his home at 100 West 10th street, New York City. He was a native of New York by way of the Lackawanna. There was a group of ladies in the street car with whom the Second Warder was acquainted, and he greeted them pleasantly and extended an invitation to them to go to the city with him to see the bicycle races. The ladies all returned thanks, and when the conductor came round for fares one of the ladies said to him: "we are in company with that gentleman," indicating the Second Warder. The latter realized that it was up to him by reason of his invitation to pay the fare, and he did so. When the car reached the center the group parted. The ladies waited for a car to Newark while the Second Warder hurried along Glenwood avenue to the railroad station.

A Fine Entertainment.

To the Editor of the Citizen:

Sir: Please allow me through your paper to congratulate the managers of the musical entertainment given Tuesday evening at the First Church on the success of the whole entertainment. Those present enjoyed a rich musical treat, and the friendly greetings at the close was evidenced by the fact that it was a late hour before the people separated. It is to be hoped that the managers will repeat the entertainment at no distant time with the same musical talent.

Birthdays Reception.

Leopold Bloch, a Glenwood avenue merchant and a well-known fencing master, was tendered a reception on the occasion of his birthday anniversary Monday evening. A large number of friends from New York, Brooklyn, Arlington, Newark, the Oranges, and this town were present and enjoyed a pleasant evening.

At the Insurance Investigation.

Auril Dodd, former president of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, has attended some of the sessions of the insurance investigating committee and has followed all the proceedings very closely. They are tremendously interesting to him, of course, for the conditions are exactly what he has criticized in private for many years, and his reports to the Mutual Benefit were a continuous protest against the "high pressure" scheme of insurance which has been so vast a failure. By his efforts, supported by the directors, the Mutual Benefit was kept out of the molestation which swallowed up the New York companies.

Board of Trade.

The quarterly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held Thursday evening in the rooms of the Essex County Building and Loan Association. Officers for the year will be nominated to be voted upon at the March meeting. Other important matters will be considered.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trade held a meeting Thursday evening.

Wedding Day Anniversary.

A notable social event will take place in Williamson avenue to-night, when Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dawson will give a reception in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day. Many invitations have been issued.

DANGER OF SOCIALISM.

Government interference in business enterprises is a step in the direction of political socialism. If government is going to arbitrarily fix franchise terms and take charges, the government will be compelled to go farther and take over the operation of public utilities, and that is what the advocates of socialism want to see done even to the extent of government ownership and operation of all industrial enterprises. Judge Peter S. Grosecup says there is grave danger of a rapid growth of State Socialism in America, and the Bloomfield World in commenting upon Judge Grosecup's utterances says:

"Without commenting upon the program of Federal regulation which Judge Grosecup proposes, his main proposition is to be approved. There is grave danger of a rapid growth of Socialism in the United States, not because of a disappearance of private ownership (in this Judge Grosecup seems to us to be in error, for the number of individual proprietors of real property and of securities is constantly increasing), but because of the impossibility, or, at least, the extreme difficulty, of the scattered owners of large corporations exercising any efficient control over their management. It is probable indeed that a more effective control can be exercised by the average man over the affairs of the quasi-public corporations in which he may be interested through his vote as a citizen than through his vote as a stockholder. In the latter capacity he so far has been powerless. We have before suggested the enactment of laws restricting the privileges of stock ownership to those who exercise its rights and obligations, and have urged minority representation by the law inserting a provision for cumulative voting in every corporate charter. These, we believe, would accomplish the desired end of bringing the owners of a company into direct relation with its administration, and thus doing away with the abuses of irresponsible power in corporate management. Some effective remedies must be devised to check pressing present-day evils if the alarming progress of the Socialistic Spirit is to be arrested."

The Tax Shirking Habit.

There is no lack of facts to prove that when property owners are allowed to get into the habit of shirking their taxes, they soon reach a point where they deny the authority of the tax official to collect taxes, or to take steps to collect these back taxes, or to jail the delinquents, a mighty howl goes up. The claim is that such action would be unjust and un-American. "In over thirty years," says the Passaic Herald, "the city of Passaic has never put any one in jail for non-payment of taxes, and—here is the point—"people do not intend to allow their officials to resort to such tyrannous power. This is not a new view for delinquent taxpayers to take; it is but a new phase of an old view. In several cities of this State no efforts have been made for thirty years or more to collect poll taxes, and now the shirkers have become so numerous and so bold that they demand the repeal of the poll tax law. They are shirkers so long that now they think they ought not to pay at all."

Yet poll taxes and unpaid personal taxes ought to be collected. The man who has good health and will not pay a dollar a year is unfit to be called a citizen and to enjoy the privileges of citizenship. To allow him to escape his taxes, year after year, is to reduce him nearer and nearer to pauperism. In cities where officials do their duty there is no difficulty in collecting practically all the poll taxes. The man who knows he will have to pay or go to jail will pay every time. Every one who has declared that he will "rot in jail before paying poll tax" has paid it some out of his cell before decomposition set in.—Newark News.

George M. Ballard.

George M. Ballard, a member of the Newark Board of Works and for many years a prominent and an active resident of that city, died Tuesday. The funeral service took place Thursday and the remains were brought to the cemetery in this town and interred in the Ballard family plot. Mr. Ballard's boyhood days were spent in this town and his father conducted a shoe store here.

Mr. Ballard was the youngest member of his family to die. Those living in the household were his wife, Mrs. Ballard, who is eighty-five years old; Mrs. Joseph Campbell, who is eighty-seven years old; Mrs. Mary Ballard, who is seventy-nine, and Mrs. John Metcalf, who is sixty-two. Another sister, Mrs. Stainey, died a few months ago at the age of seventy-six. A coincidence in connection with Mr. Ballard's death is the fact that his father and an uncle each died on December 4.

Lively Contest Anticipated.

If the several nominees for the position of president of the Second Ward Republican Club are ambitious to secure that office there is likely to be a lively contest when the club meets on the first Tuesday night in January to elect officers.

At the monthly meeting of the club Tuesday night nominations were made and will be voted on at the January meeting. For the office of president, the nominees are Thomas R. Heyen, William A. Baldwin, J. Mahon Walker and Daniel Schleich. The probability is that some of the nominees will decline the contest. Other nominations were for vice-president, Walter Tappan; secretary, John Ross and Augustus Widman; treasurer, George Hummel.
